INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 12.—Intense excitement prevails among the Populists, because of the arrest of four of their most prominent leaders, for holding a political meeting last night, in desceration of the Sabbath. The arrests were made by Town Marshal Perry of West Indianapolis. He was present at the meeting in the afternoon, and threatened to arrest the speaker, with a warning that the meeting could not be held. No attention was paid to this, and last night the operahouse was packed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—A movement has been inaugurated for the erection of a statue of George Washington in Washington Park. The movement was the outcome of a suggestion of W. C. McComas, toward the close of a lecture last night. McComas said that while Chicago had statues of Liesoln, Grant and other prominent men in the country's fistory, it appeared tery strange that a suitable monument to the father of his country had not been erected in Washington Park. The proposal was warmly received, and a committee was formed to take charge of the movement. Ex-Alderman John J. Woodward was appointed chairman.

A Democratic Caucus Discusses the Matter-The Debate Before Action.

Special Order by Mr. Catchings—Ex-Speaker Reed Scores the Gen-tlemen of the Democratic Side-The Senate.

ated Press Leased-wire Service WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.-The long struggle over the tariff bill came to a close at 6 o'clock this evening when the House by a vote of 162 to 105 decided to discharge the House conferees from further consideration of the bill, recede from its population to the 624 Senate am nd agree to the same.

It was a complete victory for the Sen-ate. The House made an absolute surrender. The result grew directly out of the sensational course of events at the sensate end of the Capitol, precipitated by

Up to that time the House conferees had stood firmly against the Senate amend-ments, especially on the three disputed schedules, coal fron ore and sugar, and the temper and voice of the House was for war, war to the end. But the indications that the Democrats of the Senate might be unable to longer hold a majority of he voters in line for even the Senate mmediate action. The Democratic con were beaten and that another vote could not be risked in the Senate; that it must

The whole question was precipitated with the caucus held just before the House con-vened today, at which, after a thorough review of the situation and speeches in favor of receding by Speaker Crisp, Chairman Wilson and others, it was decided to afterwards pass separate bills placing coal, iron ore, sugar and barbed wire on the free list, and by so doing place the House on record and at least partially overcome the humiliation involved in its defeat. The programme arranged in the caucus was carried out to the letter in the House after an ironclad special order.

Under the terms of the order but two Under the terms of the order but two hours were allowed for debate on the main proposition to recede and agree to the Senate amendments to the tariff bill. Parliamentary skirmish preceded the pitched battle, but the points of order raised by the Republicans were swept aside. The Speaker ruled the House with an iron hand. The principal speeches for and against the main proposition were an iron hand. The principal speeches for and against the main proposition were made by Messrs. Wilson and Crisp on the one hand and ex-Speaker Reed and Mr. Burrows on the other. There was no time for preparation, and all the speeches were hot from the forge of the brain, and were greeted with rounds of cheers and applause.

Bourke Cockran of New York and Mr.
Tarsney of Missouri, both Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, delivered scathing speeches denouncing the surrender of the House as cowardly and indefensible. The Speaker replied to Mr. Cockran, whose effort was a brilliant one, with such temper that the latter took it as a personal affront, although the Speaker disclaimed such intention, and made a vicious lunger at tention, and made a vicious lunge at Speaker Crisp. There was no attempt on Speaker Crisp. There was no attempt on the part of the Democratic leaders to claim a victory. They all admitted they were accepting the inevitable, justifying their action on the ground that the Senate bill was better than the McKinley law. The most startling feature of the day.

perhaps, was Mr. Cockran's eloquent appea to Chairman Wilson to name the Deno-erats in the Senate who threatned the de-feat of all tariff legislation if the attempt to adjust differences beween the two houses was persisted in, but Mr. Wilson made no response. When the vote came to be taken at 6

When the vote came to be taken at 6 p.m., thirteen Democrats voted with the Republicans against the resolutions. The Democrats then put through, one after another, what the Republicans described as the popun bills placing coal, iron ore, barbed wire and sugar on the free list, and which, in the debate on each, they maintained would be postponed only to go to death in the Senate.

CHAIRMAN WILSON'S STATEMENT. WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Chairman Wilson, author of the Wilson bill, prepared for the Associated Press at the close of the carcus, the following statement of his views on the tariff situation: "I cannot see where we failed to do anything we could to bring about a better result. When I have done the best acording to my capacity and judgment, I must fall back on the consciousness of duty done. The difficulty which the country must be constituted in the second of the constitute of the second of the country which the country was the second of try must recognize is that on the tariff question we did not have a Democratic Sepate and what has has ever been gained has been wrested from a protective body.

I have been willing to take any, even the most desperate chances, that gave the least hope of success in getting rid of the most objectionable Senate amendments and would have fought to the 4th of March if I had any ground to stand upon and any following to sustain me.

"We have been confronted by a Senate which closed ranks, while we have had divisions from the beginning that have been fermented from the Senate and growing impatience of the members to get back to their districts with anything that might be called a tariff reduction bill, had made them unwilling to stay until promise could be given of assured or probable victory. We could not honestly give such promise and a man canhot continue a battle with his army ready and eager to break away."

He said: "The effect of the caucus action is the passage effect of the caucus action is the passage of the House bill with the Senate amend-ments. The right of the President to impose taxes without Congress is taken away, and given back to the Congress to whom it belongs and from which it was wrested by the McKintey law. Much has been said concerning the sugar duty. There is less benefit given to the manufacturer by this bill than by the McKintey law.

"It should not be forgotten also that the system recommended by the House, known as the income tax, is retained in the bill as a part of our fiscal policy. By this it is proposed to tax what people have in excess of their needs, rather than to tax what they need and have not got."

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

ed Press Leased-wire Service. WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—An hour before the time set for the caucus Speaker Crisp was joined in his private office by Chairman Wilson and Representatives Turner, McMillan and Montgomery, the full membership of the House Demo-cratic Conference Committee, and Repre-sentative Breckinridge of Arkansas, the advisory member, for final consultation.

Mr. Cockran declared that there was no essity for the House to surrender as yet necessity for the House to surrender as yet and challenged Chairman Wilson's state-ment that four Democratic votes in the Senate would be lost to the bill if the fight proceeded. He demanded the names of the four Senators, but Mr. fused to give them.

Speaker asserted that it was the Senate bill or no tariff legislation. He offered esolution that the House conferees recede. The previous question was ordered by 102 to 21. Fifteen minutes' debate was the alllowed. The resolution to recede was adopted by 130 to 21. Division of the Crisp resolution was demanded so as to have separate vote on the first part to recede from the disagreement to the Senate mendments and the provision for separate bills. The first part was adopted by a rising vote, 130 to 21, and the second part ourned.

Among those who voted against the reso lution were Messrs. Warner, Strauss Tracey, Cockran, Covert, Dunphy, Cooper Johnson of Ohio, Kilgore and Tarsney of Missouri. Thirteen minutes were then given to the opponents of the resolution to state their position.

Mr. McMillan followed in a vigorous style. He repudiated the statement made by Mr. Cockran that the Senate bill was worse than the McKinley law.

Mr. Robertson of Louisiana objected to the resolution of the free sugar provisions and generally protested against the treatproached, at which time the House was to neet, the cry of "Vote! vote!" went up from the impatient members.

Mr. Robertson of Louisiana continued to urge that it would be bad faith to cut off the Louisiana planters from the bounty on this year's crop on which they had reckoned when they put it in. During the fifteen minutes' debate Chairman Wilson rose and pleaded with the caucus not to take action today. He said that whatever was the mind of the House there was no necessity for imme-said that whatever was the mind of the House there was no necessity for immediate and hurried action.

Mr. McMillan of the Ways and Means Committee also made a speech. He declared in favor of the Crisp resolution, saying that the Senate bill was much better than the McKinley law.

The resolution of Speaker Crisp, as adopted, is as follows;

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this caucus that the order heretofore made requiring a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two houses on House bill No. 434 be rescinded; that the conferees heretofore appointed by the House be discharged from further duty i that behalf and that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendments to said bill and agree to the

"Resolved, further, that the House shall at once proceed to the consideration of separate bills placing the following articles on the free list, vis.: Sugar in all its forms; iron ore, coal and barbed wire." The Committee on Rules is required to report an order providing for the prompt consideration of such motion and bills. This was adopted by an overwhelming vote, the nays being almost insignificant.

Representative Tucker of Virginia then offered a resolution thanking and commending the House conferees for their loyal service. This was adopted with a shout of approval, and the caucus adjourned.

SENATE.—The seat of the tariff war having been transferred to the House the proceedings in the Senate today were comparatively tame. The report of the conference on the Sundry Civil Bill was agreed to with some modification and the bill was sent back to conference. At 3 p.m. the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—When the House met five minutes after the Democratic caucus ad-utes after the Democratic caucus adjourned, the members were standing about in excited groups, discussing the resolu-tion. Under the rules Mr. Hurd, chairman of the Committee on the District of Columia, pending action by the Committee on Rules, claimed the day for business reported from the Committee on the Dis-trict of Columbia.

At 2:20 o'clock the meeting of the Comimmediately entered the hall with the special crder in his hand. Mr. Hurd yielded to him, and Mr. Catchings presented the rule, which was as follows:

"Resolved, that after the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order in the House to move that the order heretofore made requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two houses on House rule No. 4864, be rescinded; that the conferees heretofore appointed on the part of the House be discharged from further duty in that behalf, and that House recede from its agreement to Senate amendments to said bill in gross and agree to the same; that after two hours' debate on said motion, which shall be inadvisable, the vote shall be taken without delay or other motion.

"Resolved, second, that, any time after the adoption of this resolution, it shall be in order to present for consideration, with out reference to a committee, separate bills placing upon the free list sugar in all its forms; coal, iron ore and barbed wire; each of said bills, when presented, shall be allowed fifteen minutes' debate, and at the end of such debate the previo question shall be considered as ordered thereon, and without delay the vote shall

During the reading of the resolution there were jeers from the Republican side, Mr. Burrows calling out "Silly, Silly!" When that portion of the rule relative to frée coal, etc., was read, Mr. Catchings demanded the previous question, but Mr. Reed rose to a point of order, and the battle was on. Mr. Reed's point of order was that the tariff bill was not in the possession of the House, and that, therefore, the action proposed in the report could not be taken. He maintained that, in case of an agreement of Congress on a bill, either house could act on a report; but, in case of a disagreement, the bill went back to the body first requesting the conference.

The bill could not be in this session of The bill could not be in this session of both houses at the same time; neither could either house act except on papers before it. The papers could not be in possession of both houses at the same time. It was a parliamentary, as well as a physical, fact, he said, that the papers ate could recede at the same time. What bill would then be the law? It would certainly puzzle those who were not in the habit of cutting gordian knots. At the habit of cutting gordian knots. At the present time, he said, getting down to the existing situation, the Senate was proposing action at the same time. The House had no report on the bill, Mr. Reed said, and the Senate had repented of its bill. Both were ashamed of their offspring (Republican applause,) yet the House was now proposing to grab the Senate bill before it could be repudiated by that body and swallow its nauseous meat. Such a spectacle, he declared, had never before been witnessed.

"I do not expect my argument to have any effect," said Mr. Reed, in conclusion, addressing the Democratic side; "but you are like the heathen who have listened to

NEW HAVEN (Ct.,) Aug. 13.—All reports to the contrary, notwithstanding, the a rich harvest from the shipment of weapons for the oriental war. Two weeks ago a test case was made by the chester Company. Two members of the Chinese Legation visited the factory of the company, bought a large order which was shipped for China via Vancouver at once and the action by the government was awaited with anxiety. None has been taken and it is now believed that free shipment of arms to the belligerents not be interfered with. This is exactly ac-cording to precedent. The case of the Greek war was the most notorious ex-Greek war was the most notorious ex-ample of shipments of American guns to participate in a foreign war and the recol-lection of the Grecian ships sailing up the local harbor and loading with New Haven arms is still vivid in the minds of the people in this city. Winchester and Martin Arms companies have furnished the munitions of war to many of the South American countries in the recent wars as well as to other countries engaged in hostilities. They are eager to ship large amounts of goods are eager to sup large amounts of goods to China or Japan, and will probably be permitted to do so. An interesting ineident relative to the order for guns just made by China, is told by a Winchester employee. He said that on the occasion of the visit of the Chinese agents to the factory here they were shown the various unskilled in a knowledge of what was the most approved and desirable style of shooting-trons. Finally they selected for their entire order 8000 Hotchkies guns of a pattern of ten years ago, a lot that the pany had been for some time solid about disposing of to advantage.

Judging from this incident, the Chinese idea of modern firearms is not exactly fin de siècle. The manufacturers think the de siecle. The manufacturers think the edict of Von Caprivi of Germany that no guns shall go from that country to the Orient will aid American shipments materially.

A large force of men were at work on the Tongue River, getting out ties for the Burlington and Missouri River extension to Montana. A flume is being constructed in a bend in the river. A blast of 220 pounds of giant powder was put in and after the smoke had cleared away a number of workmen were engaged in remov-ing the rock and dirt that had been loos ened by the explosion. Without a moment's notice a huge pile of rock fell from the overhanging cliff, burying the four men beneath its weight. Gallagher and Watta have relatives in Colorado.

In Mackay's will, which provided for the distribution of an estate valued at $355,000, there was a provision that his colored housekeeper should have an allowance of $60 per month. for life, but when the will came up for probate the negro woman came into court with a coffee-colored infant, and set up the claim that she was Mackay's widow, and that the baby was his son and heir. She claimed to have nursed the capitalist through a severe illness in this city, and that afterward, in 1880, he took her to New York, and there she was married to him. Under these allegations of facts, the colored woman claimed a big slice of Mackay's estate.

The court, however, refuses to consider her claims, or the infant's, and the estate will go to Mackay's brother and nephews.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—The decision in a mining suit involving millions of dollars was rendered in the United States Circuit Court today. The case is that of the Consolidated Wyoming Gold and Silver Mining Company against the Champion Gold Mining Company. Judge Beatty delivered the decision, though it was rendered by Judge Hawley of Nevada.

The action was for an injunction and accounting of very valuable mining property, which has been in litigation in the State and Federal courts of Nevada for many years. Horton, No. 15,538, sent from Los Angeles for larceny, had a fight in their cell on July 20, in which blood was freely shed, and which would undoubtedly have ended in murder, but for the quick and timely arrival of guards and the separation of the men.

They have been cellmates for a long time, but not friends. Horton was nearing the end of his confinement and Doherty had many years to serve. There was little in common between the convicts, although the end of his confinement and Doherty had many years to serve. There was little in common between the convicts, although both were there for stealing.

On July 20 Doherty and Horton had worked quietly in the jute mill, and at the end of the day had gone together to supper without any display of temper, but while lounging in the prison yard walting for lock-up, the men engaged in an after-cation which was only discontinued when the line pussed to the cells and the turn-keys began their rounds. The men were locked in the south building, the most remots from the central yard of the prison, and after being tabbed by the turnkey, were sent into their cell, and the locking party passed along.

Before the end of the corridor was reached a loud cry from a cell just locked called the turn-key to the cell of Doherty and Horton. From the wicket the cries and calls for help were sounding, and the door was hurriedly unlocked. Horton was found bleeding profusely from the neck and mouth, and beside him was Doherty, holding a long needle, such as is used in the jute mill. The guards dragged the fighters from the cell and carried Horton to the hospital, where Dr. Mansfield staunched the flow of blood from the wounds made by Horton's cellmate. Doherty was thrown into the dungson.

On August 5 Horton's term ended, and, as it appeared that he had been the one assailed, he was permitted to leave San Quentin on that day. The directors will

She moved in American society to some extent, and she was well thought of by all. Roderigues was insanely jealous, and had on more than one occasion threatened to kill his wife. He finally determined to leave her for good, and went to Stockton two weeks ago. After he had left her, Mrs. Roderigues sold the furniture and obtained a position as domestic in the family of J. B. Casociated Press Leased-wire Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The season of 1894 will be long remembered among vessel-men, not only as the most disastrous of the latter-day marine, but also for the wonderful turns the boats have been compelled to make in order to secure cargoes. The Vermont central liner, H. R. James, which has never traded anywhere except between Chicago and Ogdensburg, is now running light to Duluth for a load. Wheat has come to Chroago from Toledo in great quantities, and it is the current report that several more cargoes are to come. Boats bringing coal to Chicago and Milwaukee are likely to go anywhere for return loads, and if it is not to Lake Superior it may be Toledo. Chicago, which usually sends out a million bushels a day in August, now has no grain trade except driblets only. Lumber seems a drug in the region supplied by the Great Lakes. Iron one is being sold at so slight profit that even the smallest advances in carrying charges are made at the risk of stopping traffic. Soft coal from Ohio ports continues to be the only vantage ground occupied by vessel owners. In that trade, it has come to a point that shippers are forced to pay the entire trip of vessels, as the down freight is scarcely worth touching. Nevertheless, the advance in coal rates during the past week is an indication of some strength, a novel condition for the season.

THE SITUATION AT 'FRISCO. THE SITUATION AT 'FRISO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—The Chronicle says that the stream is crowded at this time from Sausalito to South San Francisco with idle ships and the line of great unemployed merchantmen extends from Mission Bay to Martinez. The disengaged tonnage in port at the present time amounts to 90,209 tons as against 51,148 tons at this time last year. The engaged tonnage amounts to only 32,528 tons. At the same time last years ehips aggregating $2,491 tons were being baded alongside the docks and at Port Costa. This state of affairs has been brought about by the low price of charters and there is no hope for an increase in the charter price with wheat at the present low rates and the stream chock-a-block with carriers.

Millions of dollars of invested capital are lying idle here and some of the finest floating property in the world is swinging in the harbor with the ebb and flow of the tide. From all parts of the world have come the argosies of commerce with cargoes of all sorts. Some have come on the wings of strong breazes, breaking records across the ocean, and others have plodded along, trailing weeks through the waves making such slow time as to create anxiety for their fate. OMAHA, Aug. 13.—The court-martial of Maj. William S. Worth of the Department of the Platte began at Fort Omaha this morning. He was accused of ordering Private Cedarquist to rifle practice on Sunday. When the court was convened the charge and specifications were read to which Maj. Worth pleaded not guilty. The court was composed almost entirely of old veterans, who have seen more or less hardships and actual fighting service. Maj. less hardships and actual fighting service. Maj. Worth admitted that the men were ordered to target practice, and no evidence on that point was introduced. He explained, however, that he thought a stare of war existed, as the troops were expected to be called to Chicago daily.

As Lincoln's order against Sunday work applied to times of peace, it was suspended, the defense argued, at this period. Their case rested here.

The prosecution argued that the rule was not suspended as war did not exist. The attorney for the defense went on to show that Lincoln's order was not in force and introduced the laws of the army published by Secretary of War Endicott in February, 1885, which are prefaced by the sistement that they are the laws of the army. These rules do not mention President Lincoln's orders of 1862 regarding work and military practice on Sunday. It was durther held that the order of President Harrison abolishing Sunday in the started and rendered null.

ing work and military practice on Sunday. It was further held that the order of President Harrison abolishing Sunday inspection abrogated and rendered null President Lincoln's order.

Judge Advocate Baird completed the argument. He contended that it was an inexcussible violation of army ethics and law and in no wise a military necessity. Many ministers were present at the trial and several church societies had attorneys present in the interest of Private Cedarquist, but they were not allowed to speak.

Mills, taking several pieces from the reef, placed them in his bosom and, carefully covering the reef with earth, found his mates. The next morning twenty-five acres were pegged off, and the adjoining blocks at each end were taken up. One man went to town and bought a "dolly," the largest he could procure. In one day they "dollied" 1000 ounces, and in a short time they had nearly $100,000 worth of ore. On June they packed it in a cart and landed the treasure at the Union Bank. The manager weighed the gold and it turned the scales at 4280 ounces. A few days after this the discovery became public.

Among other reports in circulation was one to the effect that Eddie von der Ahe had schemed to bring about complications in his pa's affairs, in order that he might secure possession of his large holdings. Eddie von der Ahe, speaking of the suit, says: "In 1889 I loaned my father $5000, and shortly atterward advanced him other sums, making his total indebtedness to me $7100. I tried to get a settlement with him on many occasions, but was invariably put off with a refusal. On May 20 I purchased two of the double houses on St. Louis avenue, in one of which we reside, and paid for them. I gave my father a receipt for the amount he owed me, which was really so much cash, and paid him the difference in 'dough.' On June 18, the second deal was consummated, and I did not have sufficient ready money to carry the deal along, and associated James A. Noonan with me. Now pa, for some reason, repents the bargain, and is endeavoring to have the deals entirely canceled. There is the whole thing in a nutshell."

The younger Von der Abe is also quoted as saying that his father's financial affairs are in a bad way; that the bad elub and park are bonded for $20,000 and that next year Chris will not have control of them. President Von der Ahe made a statement today in the course of which he dwelt at length on affairs of the St. Louis Browns. He eaid: "The baseball business, not having proyed profitable for several seasons, and the cost and expense attending the improvement of the leasehold necessary to property equipped as a baseball park it became necessary for the club from time to time to raise money for its needs and purposes. The club having a floating debt and requiring more money to carry it through the present season, I proposed to the bank that they advance $15,000 additional and take the joint note of the club and myself for the full amount of $44,000, which note I would secure by deed of trust on my real estate and leasehold on St. Louis avenue. This proposition the bank accepted and the note and security were given to the bank.
"My individual notes to the bank were cancelled and the $15,000 placed to my credit. Out of that I have paid the foating debt of the club so that its affairs today stand as follows: It will owe the $44,000 to the bank when the same matures two years from its date and the quarterly notes thereon.

Associated Press Leased-wire Service QUEBBEC (can.) Aug. 13.—It will be well if no international complications follow the reported intention of the Canadian government to make selzures of American chips now reported in the Mackenile River. There are no less than seven of them here, where they passed the winter, and the report had been sent out from Attawa that the fishermen have been setting the laws of international rights at defiance pretty freely in that section. The in-formation upon which these rumors are based is said to be contained in a letter from Fort Hupe, on the Mackensie River, which has taken two months to reach hers, having been dated June 20.

which mas taken two months to reach hers, having been dated June 20.

The only paragraph of the measage made public by the government in order to bear out the impression sought to be conveyed of illegal acts on the part of the vessels' owners and crews is the following: "We received letters lately from Peels River post, in which we are told that about 150 miles from that point, down the Mackensie, seven ships have wintered, hunting whales and trading furs, and that during the last fall, they have killed 110 whales."

Canadian officials insist that these vessels must have made their catches in the estuaries of the Mackensie River, which are wholly in Canadian territory. They also stated that the goods obtained by the Indians were brought in by foreigners without the payment of duty. It is officially announced that the Dominion government has taken measures to ascertain the extent to which this has been carried on.

It is known, too, that Inspector Constine, of the Northwest mounted police, was dispatched northward in the direction of Alaska as early as last June, and his destination was even then believed to be the shores of the Arctic Ocean, in the vicinity of the stuaries of the Mackensie River and Yukon River. The nature of his instructions has never been made public, and to all inquiries on the subject the government observes a discreet ellence.

It is now believed at Ottawa that the government baselieved at Ottawa that the government had information regarding the action of American ships prior to the date of the letter, of which a portion has been made public, and that it was a part of Constine's duty to reach like mouth of the Mackensie before the vessels got out into the ocean. It is more than probable that whatsver action was to be taken by the inspector has occurred before this, but news may not be received of it here for several weeks.

OTTAWA (Ill.) Aug. 13.—The Salvation Army, which was arrested in a body for persisting in holding street meetings, after being ordered to desist by Mayor Schoch, and later was released on the individual recognizances of its members, again made its appearance last night, and formed for the usual programme in the Courthouse Square. They were ordered off the county property by deputies, and then proceeded to hold the meeting in the street.

No sooner had this been told to the police, then a squad of officers appeared and marched them to the office of Justice Hannifen, who committed them to the City Prison until this moraing, when they were given a preliminary hearing. In the march to jail they attempted to make light of the commitment, by playing their drums and horns, but were forced to desist by Marshal Maher.

Capt. Sturgeon says he has imperative orders from the Illinois department of the army to hold street meetings every day, and will do so, if he and his command are kept in jall three-quarters of their time Mayor Schoch, who is acting under the city ordinance, upon the complaint of business men, says he will enforce the law, if the jall is filled with Salvationists every night. The ordinance prohibits all obstruction of the streets, and it is under this charge that the prosecution has been put in operation. There is talk of a test case, but the city at present is likely to remain mester of the situation.

terests, the aggregate importance of which equals that of the Pullman Company so far as Chicago is concerned.

These interests are the builders of Chicago, who have for years been engaged in erecting sky-scraping structures, and they are to be compelled to show cause why they should not be punished for alleged violations of their charters, which, in the cases of the majority, provide for the building of safe-deposit vaults, or structures devoted to the arts and sciences. The announcement that his is to be done is made by people close to the Attorney-General, and it is coupled with the statement that one out of ten of the modern high-office, buildings in Chicago are erected in violation of the statutes. In a few exceptions all are owned by corporations or firms organized as safe-deposit companies, bearing titles different from those over their doors. The Rookery, Rislto, First National Bank, National Bank of Illinois, Chicago Operahouse Building, the Unity Building, erected by Altgeld, the Auditorium and a dosen others are examples. They are all built as asserted, with the proceeds of stocks and bonds issued upon the buildings, and the leasehold, for, in the majority of instances, the ground is not owned, but held under long leases. Probably $50,000,000 would not cover the sum expended in these buildings.

The general law of Illinois permits any kind of business, with a few exceptions. Of these one of the most important has to do with real estate. No corporation, so it is stated, is permitted by the statute to participate in the buying or selling of real estate for rent as a building.

To evade this provision, says an authority, the various corporations formed to erect buildings in Chicago for office and store purposes have taken out charters for the erection of safe-deposit vaults, or buildings devoted to the arts or a theater. Having secured the charter, the companies have proceeded to establish a safe-deposit vault in the basement, and then cover it with from eight to nine stories. In some instances, it is stated, the company has failed even to build the safe-deposit vaults, but have contented themselves with constructing ordinary vaults, a dozen of which is considered sufficient to comply with the law.

of which is considered sufficient to comply with the law.

Some of the buildings are owned by associations which have issued stocks and bonds. This is declared to be in violation of the law as interpreted by the late Chief Justice Schofield of the Supreme Court. In a decision rendered by him in 1888 he laid down the rule that no association could exercise this power of a corporation. In short, says the authority referred to, the high buildings of Chicago are to be handed into court.

Illinois Crops.

SPRINGFIELD (III..) Aug. 13.—The State Board of Agriculturs will issue its crop bulletin for the month of August next week. Several counties have not yet sent in reports, and this, with other delays, have kept the publication back nearly two weeks. The corn crop is shown to be in about the same condition as published by this week's government bulletin, and will average about 75.35 per cent. of a crop. Other cereals will be shown to be in fair condition. Much rain is badly needed, and, if it fails in sufficient quantities, it will have a good effect.

INDIANA CROPS INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—The weekly report issued today by the Indiana Weather Bureau shows a discouraging crop situa-tion. MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—While the Congregation of St. Elisabeth Church was worshipping last night at Flitteenth avenue south and Elighth street, the safe in the parsonage, two doors sway, was blown open by burglars. A member of the congregation, who was seated on the front steps of the church during the service, observed a man enter and leave the church frequently, giving the excuse that he was sick at the stomach.

It turns out that he was on the watch and that the explosion was timed to occur at the time the organ was playing for the closing services, so that the sound could not be heard. The burglars secured nothing for their pains, the pastor of the church being in Europe and the church ollections being kept elsewhere during his absence.

the Christian missionaries. Yoù have no chance of redemption."

The Speaker announced that he was ready to rule. After a careful statement of the situation, and a declaration that, by a special order changing or suspending the rules of the House temporarily, the accepted doctrine of Jefferson's manual was carried out, and, after reciting a precedent in one of Speaker Carlisle's rulings, the Speaker overruled the point of order. The previous question was then ordered without division. This gave fifteen minutes on a side for the discussion of the special order. Mr. Catchings of Mississippi did not desire to debate the rule, and ex-Speaker Reed took the ficor and made a very sarcastic speech.

ex-Speaker Reed took the floor and made a very sarcastic speech.
"You are going to give the country free sugar," said he, in his most ironical vein, amid shouts of Republican laughter, "in you minds," he added, amid renewed shouts of derision, "and free coal and free iron ore. You are going to be bold and manly, as you have been in this backdown, without a reference to the committee that stands between you and the noble purpose that thrills you."

Representative Turner of Georgia replied to Mr. Reed, and was greeted with applause by the Democrats. He said the gentleman from Maine had built up a

When the speaker announced the vote, 188 to 3, twelve more than a quorum, the Republicans were somewhat disconcerted. Mr. Reed, however, quickly demanded the yeas and nays. Before the clerk began calling the roll, Mr. Wilson of Washington brought down a round of applause by innocently asking the speaker if it would be in order, before the roll was called, to have the President's letter again reed.

The speaker rapped him to order with his gavel, and the roll-call proceeded. The House order was adopted, 176 to 97; not voting, 11. Among the Democrats voting in the negative were Messra. Davey, Robertson of Louisiana, Covert, Price, Gorman and Warner. Mr. Kilgore answered present, but did not vote. In other respects the vote was strictly on party lines.

Upon the annoucement of the vote Chairman Wilson immediately submitted in writing the motion provided for in the order adopted. Mr. Reed made the point of or-der that the bill was not before the House. The bill had been brought, however, during the roll-call, and the Speaker pointed to it. Mr. Wilson took the floor. He spoke calmly, but eloquently, the Democrats crowding about him and listening intensely to his every word. Again and again the applause

I had hoped and believed, until there seemed to be no ground scarcely for hope and belief that in such a contest, this House, backed by the American people and enthusiastically sustained by the Democratic party, would be able to achieve some hoporable compounts between the ne honorable compromise between the b bouses which we could have accepted, from a sense of duty, but with a sense satisfaction and a feeling that we had ponded to the mandates of the Amer-

"But, Mr. Speaker, we have simply realized in this great fact the fact so well stated by the great leader of tariff reform fight on the great question, that when the people had gained a victory at the polls, they must have a further stand-up and knock-down fight with their own representatives. And we have realized, if nothing else, the salutory lesson of the interendment of the political system in this country under thirty years of class legislation, until the mera matter of tariff what I shall submit to you. I do not the great question presented itself is this to be a government by a self-taxing people, or a government by trusts and monop-schedules, this I do know: That it is better than the McKinley law. (Democratic applause.)

"This I do know—that in a part of it it does afford some relief to the taxpayers of the country, and does clip the wings of the giant monopolies who are now oppressing them and blocking legislation. (Applause on the Democratic side; derisive cries on the Republican side.)

"Take even these portions of the bill over which this contest between the two houses has been waged; take iron ore and coal, upon which we have confronted, has, to a certain extent, unsuccessfully confronted the great railroad syndicates of the country, yet we have reduced them both nearly 50 per cent. below the McKinley bill. (Democratic applause.)

"The sugar schedule, over which the greatest of all the contests between the two houses has been waged, vicious as it may be, it is less vicious, less favorable to the trust, less burdensome to the people as it may be, it is less vicious, less favorable to the trust, less burdensome to the people than the McKinley law, under which this trust has grown so great as to overshadow with its power the American people. If for no other reason than those who believe that, when they cannot take the full step which they desire, when they cannot do that which the people commissioned them to do, they must take the best they can get, and step as far as they can, they may find some justification for an unhesitating choice between the two bills."

"I should like to ask the gentleman," interrupted Mr. Hudson of Kansas, "whether he had investigated fully as to be able to state definitely that this bill as amended by the Senate will furnish sufficient revenue to meet the entire expense of the government?"

"That is a question," replied Mr. Wilson, "which no man, perhaps, certainly not I, can answer in definite language, but I have no difficulty whatever in saying that when the schedules of the bill with the Senate amendments get into normal operation it will produce sufficient and more than sufficient revenue for the support of the government. I should add to the answer, perhaps in the beginning, the bill will perhaps produce as much revenue as will result from it later on, under $\frac{1}{2}$ so offinary workings, because, I am informed, whether it be true of not, I don't know, whether it be true of not, I don't know, what the Sugar Trust in anticipation of the passage of this bill, has imported about $100,000,000 worth, or it has been said even more than that quantity of raw gugar."

"I think I have already covered that question in my previous answer. It may be for the first few months of the operation of the bill, because of this great accumulation of raw sugar, to which I just referred, that the revenues of the government will not be sufficient to meet the expenditures of the government. But it is my belief, in view of the large amount of importance. of the government. But it is my bester, in view of the large amount of imported goods in bond, and also in view of the fact that there will be large importations when the tariff rates are definitely known and fixed, that if the necessity does not exist today it will not exist after the passage of this bill."

"Will the gentleman pardon me just one question on that point?" said Mr. Dingley of Maine. "I understood him to say the Sugar Trust had already imported $100,-000,000 worth of sugar; if so, inasmuch as constant $100,000 worth of sugar; if so, inasmuch as only $104,000,000 worth of sugar was imported isst year, will not all the revenue we get from sugar under the operation of this bill for the first year be missing?"

"I did not intend to give the figures that $100,000,000 of raw sugar had been imported," replied Mr. Wilson. "I stated that I had been informed that the Sugar ted about that amount and I even heard it stated that it was in excess of that amount. It has been put at 448,000 tons by those who pretend to 445,000 tons by those who pretend to know."

"Is it not true," asked Mr. Hurd, "that whatever may be the bonus to the Sugar Trust, in view of the passage of this law, would not the trust reap a still larger bonus under the operation of the McKinley law, if it were still left in force?"

"They would not do so immediately, but under the operation of that law from year to year, they would certainly reap a larger sum."

"Mr. Speaker, in answer to all of those

"Mr. Speaker," said Mr. Reed, "I am somewhat reluctant to address the House, but my feelings are divided between two emotions—one is an emotion of regret for the Democratic party and for its position, and the other is a feeling of regret for the country and its position, too. As far as the gentleman from West Virginia is concerned, and his compartiots, there are not the difference between rocession which cannot have been added to the difference between rocession which cannot have been added to the significant of the difference between rocession which cannot have been and the triums House. (Laughter.) It is fortunate for the gentleman from West Virginia and his compatriots that they have had to contend with gentlemen of so much more capacity and skill. Undoubtedly the House conferees meant well. Undoubtedly their intentions were honorable, but they were not so skillful as those men. Why, our conferees come back to us, gentlemen, without a much as the name of the bill they transported across this building a month ago. It will be known in history as the Gorman-Brice, vice the Wilson bill, dead (laughter and applause on the Republican side,) and not dead on the field of honor, either. (Renewed laughter and applause) on the Republican side,) and not dead on the field of honor, either. (Renewed laughter and applause). "The gentleman from West Virginia and his compatriots are before us now, not as the triumphal reformers marching to glory at the sound of their own sweet voices. They are little babes in the woods, and it will be found pretty soon that they were left there by their uncle in the White House. (Great laughter and applause.)

"I can hear the humming of the pinions of the little birds bearing the ballots that are to bury them out of sight. (Laughter on the Republican side.) That fate is of small consequence. Their disappearance is the least of this event. I told this House, speaking on this tariff question, that one of the great misfortunes of attempted action would be the fact that what was only an effort o

Mr. McMillan followed Reed. He began by referring to Mr. Reed's prophesy of political disaster to the Democrats of the House and the overthrow of the Republican House after the passage of the McKinley bill in 1890. The sally at Mr. Tracey's expense brought down a storm of applause. Mr. Pence quickly apologized to the chair and said, amid renewed laughter, he thought the member in the chair was the new mouthplece of the administration (Mr. Strauss of New York.)

Any measure was a measure for the relief of the masses, Mr. Pence proceeded, if it repealed the McKinley law. At the conclusion, he paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Cockran of New York was given the closest attention by the expectant galleries, and was at times enthusiastically applauded from either side of the chamber, as his siedge-hammer blows were dealt at the McKinley law, or the Senate bill. Mr. Cockran was deeply in earnest, and his pretest against the consummation of this tariff legislation recalled the famous speech of protest at the Chicago convention.

of this tariff legislation recalled the famous speech of protest at the Chicago convention.

Representative Tarsney of Missouri followed, with a bitter attack on the Senate bill. He said the highest authority in the Democratic party had stigmatized it with disgrace and dishonor.

"In this conclusion I concur heartily," said he, "and I feel it would be a personal dishonor to me to vote on this bill, and I shall not do so."

There was hearty Republican applause at the announcement from Mr. Tarsney, which was the more significant by the fact of his membership on the Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. Johnson of Ohie said he was grieved to part company with his Democratic colleagues on the floor, but he did not believe the concessions made were necessary to secure the vote of the Senate. The Sanate hill was not the best that could have been secured. The House had ingloriously surrendered. It had hoisted the white flag; it had lowered itself to the United States Senate. (Laughter.) This action meant that every woman who bought her household sugar was made an emissary to preach against the Democratic party.

Speaker Crisp was recognized amid much applause. As he was about to begin an animated conflict arose over the right of Mr. Reed to close the debate. Mr. Tracey, who was in the chair, informed Mr. Reed that he had five minutes.

"You cannot use it," responded the chairman, "in closing the debate. If you wish have instead? We have a proposition to fire one of those pop-gun tariff bills for which the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Springer) was deposed from the ways and Means Committee." (Eaughter on the Republican side.)

"His successor, after filling the atmosphere with his outspread wings, finds his nest in some other bird's premises. (Republican laughter.) Why not resign if you were to adopt the action of the other person? I congratulate the gentleman thould know," Speaker Crisp said, "that the affirmative of the person? then resumed his speech.

After this Mr. Wilson arose and corrected a statement he had made in his speech to the effect that $100,000,000 worth of raw sugar had been purchased by the Sugar Trust, in anticipation of the passage of the sugar schedule of the Senate bill. He had been mistaken; he afterward learned that the trust had purchased 448,00 tons.

"How much is that in dollars and centa?" called out a member.

"About $25,000,000," said Mr. Wilson.
In concluding Mr. Wilson said that this was not a time for Democratic enthusiasm. It was plain Democratic duty, but if the Democratic party was to but it was a matter of utter impossibility to meet his laundry bill.

However such facts gave him little cause for worry; he was an optimist of the superlative degree and a native of Massachusetts. One Thursday, after an unusually fetching "stand-off" to his land-lady, Stubbins disappeared and was missed alike by capitalist and creditor. For a whole year, no Stubbins, and then mysteriously as he left came again, paying his debts right and left; heartily welcomed by the majority and a moving revelation to all. Evidently one scheme in his category was worthy of consideration.

But, alas! alas!—for poor Stubbins, Six months later, money successfully wasted, deeper debted than before, spirit, gone, Stubbins wanders aimlessly about the dark streets, carrying the remnants of a 15-cent dissipation, and most certainly his last.

streets, carrying the remnants of a 15-cent dissipation, and most certainly his last.

The future looks black. Stubbins seats himself on a hitching-block; and to crown it all, a dismal rain sets in.

Some one hurrying by recognizes, in the dim lamplight, the silent figure on the hitching block.

"Stubbins" he exclaims.

"No, Brown," Subbins murmurs, "only Stubbins's wreck!"

"But come," said Brown, "out of this nasty night; come with me and have something that'll warm you."

"Am I dreamin?" asked Stubbins, and off they went.

Seated in a secluded corner of a convenient tavern, after a few conventionalities and other things, Stubbins assumed a wise expression and began:

"Say, Brown, if I had $50 I could more'n get on my feet again. Couldn't you lend me that much?"

Now Brown was well fixed, but he always hesitated before dropping a dollar where it didn't look safe; so he kept quiet and sild an empty beer glass round and round on the polished table. Finally a where it didn't look saie; so he sept quiet and slid an empty beer glass round and round on the polished table. Finally a funny expression settled over his face. Brown was a man of curiosity, and looking his companion squarely in the face, said. "I'll tell you what I'll do, Stubby. If you'll tell me where you got that money you brought back with you six months ago I'll lend you fifty dollars."

Stubblus never showed where it hit him. For an instant he was motionless, then, raising his glass calmly, inverted it while a sole remaining drop trickled cautiously down, and fell into his capacious mouth, open to receive it.

Carefully and tenderly he lowered the glass and ejaculated:

"It's a go, Brown." Then, after a pause,

"To begin with, I want to call your attention to my hair; it's luxuriant; it's silky, isn't it?" Truthrully it was luxuriant, but silky wasn't appropriate.

"Well, five years ago there wasn't so much hair on my head as there is on the bottom of your boot. Strange! but it's true. You see, my uncle sent me some stuff that did the "biz," one bottle started her growin' thicker 'n hops.

"So much for that. A year'n a half ago, when I lit out, I had enough cash to get me into Mexico; livin's cheap there, 'n I had some friends there that own a big ranch 'n' they wanted me to come 'n' visit them. Didn't leave here any too soon for my health, either.

"Well, this fellow in Mexico's got a big collection of pets. Seems to take a special fancy to dogs, 'n' he had the queerest specimen I ever see—for a dog. Baldheaded from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail—no more hair on him than you have in the paim of your hand. Blest if I didn't kind 'a love that dog, 'n' I used to feed him, till he got to follerin' me—would come to my room 'n' sleep there 'n' make himself generally to home where I was.

"One night I was haulin' over my stuff and Juanito, that's the dog, (means Johnny,) he was there as usual. Finally, I fished out a bottle with some of that hair renewer that I took, 'n' the idea come into my head to smear some of it on Juanito; so I sneapped my fingers, 'n' up he jumped, 'n' I smeared it on. I hadn't very much 'n' had to be kinder particular shout putthi 'it on; but at last the job was done 'n' I swent to bed.

"Next morning I looked at the dog 'n' saw the stuff was gettin' in its work—the returns were comin' in fast. Juanito was a little fuzzy—that's all, but it didn't show up much yet.

"That day I went buntin'—staid away for a couple of days following. Yes, the

"Well, sir; there was that Mexican half-less dog as perfect a speciment of a King Charles spaniel as ever I laid eyes on-fact—couldn't tell 'em apart, except by a few little spots where the medicine didn't hit. You ought to have seen how proud my friend was of his new pet, 'a' never said a word about little bald-headed "Trenties"."

never said a word about little bald-headed Juanito."

"Oh, come off." roared Brown, "you can't push that down me."

"No, no:" remonstrated Stubbins, "that's true, sure's I'm sittin' here."

"But how in the world could that have anything to do with the money you brought back?" queried Brown.

"Easy as can be," returned Stubbins. "I telegraphed my uncle for six cases of that hair renewer; bought up all the hair-less dogs in that neighborhood, "I two or three others (get 'em cheap as dirt from the dirty greasers;) hired ten men to help me, 'n' in two days had 'em all covered with the stuff—yes, the dogs, of course—'n' done a good job, too. Then I chartered two off.

done a good job, too. Then I chartered two eartile cars; chucked the dogs in 'n' started off.

"Two hundred miles from there I stopped at a station 'n' looked at my dogs. Well, sir, durn me if they wasn't covered with the pretitest, sliky hair, 'n' just in the right condition too.

"I sold six then and there for the finest King Charles spanlels; gave them all a pedigree, too, 'n' that's the whole story. Now you know it. Brown. I got rid of the rest in three days at a handsome price, 'n' that's how I got the money."

Brown never said a word, but went quickly to the desk and filled out a check for $50. Returning, he flipped it on the table under the nose of Pickey C. Stubbins, Esq., and remarked, in a casual way:
"Perhaps you won't mind telling me how you can get on your feet with that fifty?"

"Certainly not," replied Stubbins. "I'm now you can get a feet it.

"Certainly not," replied Stubbins. "I'm going to buy a couple of dozen dirty yellow pups with part of that fifty; then I'm going to Boston and sell 'om for full-blooded, long-nosed English pug dogs. See?"

Running a Confederate Blockade.

(Cincinnati Times-Star:) Capt. Lew Kates, whose death occurred last Saturday, was a typical old-fashloned boatman. He was, throughout the war, a staunch Union man and several times ran the blockade of the Confederate gunboats. Upon one occasion, just after the battle of Fort Pillow, he got caught with his boat; the Darling, at Memphis. He had aboard a cabin full of loyal women and children, who were extremely anxious to get to the North. Kates was as brave as he was loyal. He was diplomatic, too. He left Memphis with the Darling under cover of darkness, and when just below Fort Pillow his pilot hurriedly informed him that two rebel gunboats were coming toward him. The day was windy and no flag was floating at the masthead in consequence. There were no weapons of defense aboard the Darling. Kates ordered his engineers to put on all the steam the boat could carry and to rush by the supposite a randity as possible.

PURIFYING THE PRIMARIES.

We have received a circular from a Francisco 'weekly publication called the Wave, announcing that it has opened a campaign for honest primaries, and looks confidently to the press of both parties, to the hon est men on both sides, to contribute toward the perfection of our election This is an object which all good citizens will admit is a worthy one, but it does not always follow that because an object is a good one the means proposed to attain that ob ject are desirable and practicable.
The Wave does not sufficiently explain Wave does not sufficiently explain the details of its proposed plan, so that we can criticise it.

All that is needed to secure honest primaries is to devise a plan that will permit every voter to express his views without fear or hindrance. This, on the surface, looks to be a very easy proposition. It should be easy, but, unfortunately, as many of us have discovered, it is not so, not because there are any special difficulties in the way of devising a plan that will enable every voter to cast a free ballot, but because of the strong efforts which are put forth in certain quarters to prevent the adoption of such a plan. This has been found to be the difficulty in connection with the Postal Primary Plan, as suggested in The Times, a plan which we believe "fills the bill" as well or better than anything that has yet been devised, trouble will be found in carrying out the plan proposed by our San Francisco contemporary, whatever the plan may be. Meantime, it is a good thing to have a full and free discussion of the subject, to the end that public interest may be aroused. If, however, any definite good is to be accomplished in this line, such discussion must before long be followed by vigorous action. The entire question, in a nutshell, is this: Just as soon as a majority of the people are ready for purification of the primaries they will be purified, and not sooner. We believe the time is ripe for inaugurating electoral reform, and, further, that the Republican party of Los Angeles county can inaugurate that reform by adopting and putting into effect the-Postal Primary Plan in the primaries of 1894. The Executive Committee of the Republican County Central Committee has thus far taken no action looking to the adoption of the plan. We therefore urge upon that higher body, the General Committee, which is soon to meet, the high expediency of taking up the Postal Plan for dis. cussion and definite and early action. All fair questions that may be raised in committee concerning any feature of the plan will, we have no doubt, be satisfactorily answered, upon request, by members of the Committee of One Hundred, who might be in vited to attend a session or sessions of the County Central Committee.

That the Republicans have here a dis-tinct opportunity to inaugurate a prac-tical reform in politics, and to make a great winning, is our confident belief. Will the committee rise to the occasion and embrace its opportunity?

The following contributions by citirection of a monument to Engineer amuel Clarke, of the Southern Pacific lompany, who dared to do his duty, a spite of jeers, and died at his post to the recent railroad wreck near Sac-

The severe drought which has pr vailed throughout Colorado, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and other States has been very hard upon the farmers in that region, but is likely to have one good effect, namely, in calling attention to the advantages of irrigation. Already a big massmeeting has been held in Nebraska to discuss the question of irrigation, and a proposition has been made by the representative of Eastern capl talists to construct a canal there, pro viding certain counties contribute $250,000 in bonds toward the enterprise. The meeting unanimously resolved to accept the proposition. It is quite possible that this sever drought may prove to be a blessing in disguise, by awakening the people of the great Western plains to a realization of the importance of irrigation. This would not only be a good thing for these sections, but for the whole country. As we have frequently pointed out, the great obstacle in the way of getting the government to take some definite steps for the irigation of the arid lands lies in the ignorance of the people living east of the mountains in regard to the whole question of irrigation. As long as the ques tion is confined to the arid lands of the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain sections, it is a difficult thing to get Congress to take the matter up seriously, but if we can only succee in getting the people of the entire re-gion west of the Mississippi interested it will be a different matter altogether.

To us of Southern California, who have seen flourishing towns grow up In sections which a dozen years ago were arid and forbidding deserts, appears strange that Congress should so little appreciate the great importance of the subject, but we should remember that to a great majority of our legislators it is as foreign and unknown a problem as the harvesting of the ice crop of New England is to native Californians. For this reason anything that tends to bring the ques tion into prominence or to arouse interest in it is most welcome. The importance of the subject may be estimated from the statement that the total land surface of the arid region of the United States is 883,312,000 acres, of which at present less than one-half of 1 per cent, is irrigated. It is estimated that there are 616,000,-000 acres of land in this region upon which water would produce crops. Yet another fact: Of 568,000,000 country, no less than 542,000,000 acres. or about 95 per cent., are in the arid region. Here is a chance for the government to furnish homes for millions

It is to be hoped that at the coming National Irrigation Congress in Denver next month, strong resolutions will be adopted in favor of the irrigation of this land by the government, to whom it belongs. It is difficult to see how any reasonable man, who is not interested in the private ownership of these lands, can object to such a step, which is so entirely proper and desirable. It is not like a question of the government taking possession of the railroads. The government already owns these lands. All that it needs to do is to put them in shape, so that they can be occupied as homesteads. In expending money for the improve ment of rivers and harbors, the gov ernment goes to an expense for which it only receives an indirect return. In this case it would be different. The money expended in irrigating these lands would not only be re-prosperity of the country. Those who favor government ownership of the arid lands should be on the lookout at the National Congress, as there will undoubtedly be a strong effort made to secure an expression of opinion in favor of private owner

LABOR AND LOGIC.

From San Francisco it is announced that an "important national association" has been formed there "for the purpose of preventing strikes and other labor troubles." It is also stated that Andrew Carnegie has declined the presidency of the contemplated organization, on the ground that he is devoting himself to writing a book on capital and labor, and that he could not afford to tie himself up in any manner with an employers' or any other association, committed to definite principles on the subject. The report goes on to say that "the pro-moters of the scheme do not desire their movements to be generally known," but at the same time they furnish a "declaration of principles" which would fill about a column of The Times

This declaration is too long-winded to quote in anything like detail, but the gist of the matter appears to be that the association contemplates a campaign of education for the purpose of reasoning with and educating the labor element of the country, and at the same time to endeavor to bring capital and labor to a better understanding. So far, there can be no objection to any such movement as this, but, in a general way, we do not see the utility or necessity of forming an association to "prevent strikes and other labor troubles." Granting that "strikes and other labor troubles." Granting that "strikes and other labor troubles are illegal, which we maintain, and which is generally recognized by a great majority of those citizens whose opinions are entitled to respect, then it appears to use that it would be just about as reasonable to organize an association to prevent burgiarles and other crimes. These are matters with which the law is supposed to deal—with which it should and must deal. If the law is at present inadequate to control such modern manifestations of lawlessees as strikes and boycotts, with their attendant violence, then it is time for supplemental laws to be passed which will do so.

One hears altogether too much twaddle on this subject. The American workingman appears to be regarded by many people as some sort of a spoiled child. The American some of these people talk it would be supposed that the United States toiler was something like one of those unfortunate bables who come into the world before their time and have to be wrapped up in cotton wool and raised in an incubator. Such treatment must containly be very unwelcome and mornifying to all self-respecting workingmen. As was very pertinently said by Senator Hoar, whose words were quoted in yester day's Times: "It is a disgrace American that he is willing to be included in a specific class designated as No true American citizen should be willing to look upon himself in the light of a mere laboring machine. He certainly should have higher aspirations than that. His chances are equal to those of all the other great men of this country who have risen from the ranks. It is safe to say, however, that none of those men permitted themselves either to be coddled or flattered by would-be humanitarians, or to be enslaved and bulldozed by irresponsible demagogues of the Debs stripe. Let the American workingman begin to think for himself and refuse to be longer handled as a puppet, either by politicians, who want to take advantage of his vote, or by demagogues who are anxious to make a commission on that vote by selling it to these politicians. The labor question is a very simple one, when it is looked at from a common seuse point of view. It is simply that a man has a right to work when he pleases, and for all that he can get, and (in the absence of a specific contract) to quit work whenever he wishes to do so, but that e has no right whatever, either in law or equity, to seek to compel others to refrain from working when they are willing to do so. This is "the law and the prophets" of labor, and it should not need any national association or long-winded treatise to establish such a self-evident proposition Let us have a little more sense and a little less buncombe on the subject of labor. We are all laborers, in one way or another, excepting s few young fools who have inherited wealth and want to try and imitate the English aristocracy.

Let candidates for office, for the highest office of the State, declare themselves in clear-cut language on this subject, and "give us a rest" on "glittering generalitie men, remember that you can't "fool all the people all the time"-not by a millsite.

Ah! my lady, if you could look into the anxious, cars-worn faces of as many good, pure wives in one week as I have, and know how glad they would be to give up the one or two rooms and bakers' bread for a home and conveniences out of which to make comfort, you would surely regret the hard lines you penned, which give these Bluebeard men encouragement to complain of the lightness of his conforts to a tired wife, just returned from her day's work.

The High School Heating Matter

The High School Heating Matter Comes Up Again.

The school board indulged in a semi-monthly scance again last evening and went through the characteristic contortions in the transaction of business. It was quite late when the nine seats were filled, and the usual order was called for.

An application from Mrs. E. Parsons for a leave of absence was referred to the Teachers' Committee.

The list of teachers employed, giving the classification, as arranged by the Teachers' Committee, was read by Mr.

The committee recommended that the schools-reopen on Tuesday, September 11.

The report, as a whole, was adopted.

The appointment of junitors was also read, and Dr. Wills entered a kick against the committee of the com read, and Dr. Wills entered a kick against a certain appointment. Mr. Buehler also had an objection to offer, and here a hornets' nest was stirred up. Dr. Wills spoke in a far-away, grieved and disgusted tone of voics. He said that he knew that it would do no good, but he desired to register his protest.

Maj. Furrey asked to be heard. He appeared as one of the bidders on the proposed work in the High School. He argued that the bids submitted by other parties were not such as could be accepted with safety by the board.

Deputy City Attorney Dunn was called, and he said that the bond was not before the board, as the had not been completed. He also said that the bond was not before the board, as the had not been completed. He also said that Maj. Maj. Furrey had nothing to say to this and remained silent.

Mr. Trask said that Maj. Furrey had said that the board did not know what they were going to get as apparatus under the contract, and he wanted to hear from the architect upon the subject.

The architect explained matters in an apparently satisfactory manner.

Dr. Wills moved that the contractors be allowed further time to complete their bond.

The Evils of Truculent Journalism Cowardly Politicians and For-eign Immigration—Let the Army Be Increased.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6, 1894.—(To SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6, 1894.—(To the 'piditor of The Times:) The one occupying a position as editor or manager of a journal—published in this State particularly—who did not rise superior to the situation, and with all his ability and energy stand up for and advocate the right in the great emergency through which the people have successfully passed, is unfitted, entirely so, for the honest performance of those duties which, in a crisis where the liberty of the law-abiding is at stake, are so important, and he thereby at stake, are so important, and he thereby simply becomes a traitor to his God, his country and civilization, as a general prop-onism to the first is entitled to no particular credit, other than that recognition which a grateful people see fit to extend when he has simply done his duty. The one who came to the defense of the people against anarchy, brutality and infamy, came to his own defense as well, by reason of his action, and in his endeavors to protect them in the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, became a participant in all that that condition vouchsafed him. We have heretofore been led to believe that the press of the country was the great and impenetrable bulwark, within which the people could find safe refuge, but recent events are in evidence that the greatest dangers to the masses lie in many of the editorial-rooms of the country. I am ashamed to make such an avowal, but nevertheless it is true; and, although it has been said, and probably with home degree of reason, that the truth must not be told at all times, yet this instance. I look upon as an exception to the rule. The troubles that have just receded, were not based upon the fact that Pullman did or did not reduce the wages of his workmen, or whether the Southern Pacific Railroad Company refused to cut his cars out of their trains or not, but it resolved itself down to the simple proposition, whether the American people had a government of their own or not, and whether it was worth while to determine the question now and forever.

I have been somewhat harsh in my political criticisms of President Cleveland, and while I am not apologising in the slightest for anything I may have said heretofore relative to his course of action, yet I cannot with justice, decency or honor withhold my heartfelt admiration for the stand he took in dealing with those who were filling the role of destroyers of the country. He evinced an understanding of the stuation I did not think he possessed, and in the attitude he assumed he displayed a patriotism sutch as the first here of the republic would have been as bright as that of Mexico in its states fighting and revoluti and issues as a full-sedged omes-holder on Thursday, it is a fact that these that bred the Homestead ricks in Pennsylvania were so stolidly ignorant in every way, they could not understandingly give their names so they might be inscribed on the pay-rolls that they might receive their wages, and therefore were tagged and numbered. This is no fancy sketch, but is susceptible of corroboration. The "strike" was on, now it is off. What is the result? Simply an abandonment of work in summer, in order to endure poverty in winter. It has been deviliah from its meeption to the close. The high-salaried officials that engineered it and kept it in operation bank in the warmth of their comfortable surroundings, while their poor dupes, contributing to this comfort and pleasure, repose on straw, without light, warmth or food. Labor has, we were about to say, received its death blow, not in its individual capacity, but as a confederation; its power is broken for evil, as is the power of the daily press of this city for doing good. When this useless, criminal anarchistic rebelifion opened up, the press could have antervened, and to an untold advantage. But it saw in its prolongation a chance to make a profit out of destruction following in its wake, and in order to secure the smiles of the "strikers," raised the issue of capital against labor. What a farce! A nice issue truly to be raised in this State, where in the savings banks there is to the ceridit of what are called the laboring classes $120.000,000, and in the savings banks of the United States, a sum approximating $2,375,776,147, and that is the way capital has ground tabor into the dust, in accordance with the swinding information presented by the satante press, This cry is what Debs made capital out of for his rebellion, and the very men who were depositors in these tanks knew he lied, but enlisted under his banner by and through the pleadings and teachings of a rotten, disgraceful and deprayed daily press, actuated by venom; hate and maillee and disappointed financia and desappointed manetal amorton. And yet I do not know but that the press as just refarred to has been a blessing in diaguise, in that it has opened the eyes of the people to the fact that their reliance on the press was no reliance at all, in that their distress was made the subject of a moneyed speculation. But for the daily press this rebellion of anarchy and despoliation would have died at its inception; but the newspaper "fakire" in command would not permit it. Not any benefit in the least has accrued to labor, but the sidvantage will all be on the side of those whe were forced by labor to contend with labor. Well, indeed, may it be said of the daily press (particularly of this city) "How have the inighty faileul" I speak of the press in this connection as freely and fully as I do, for the reason it has been the sponsor of Debs is all his malignant deviltry, and this responsibility is so deeply impressed upon them that there is no esseane.

of Debs is all his malignant deviltry, and this responsibility is so deeply impressed upon them that there is no escape.

I do not propose in this to pose as a public persecutor of any one particular man or paper. What I wanted to do, and what I proposed doing was to lay before you certain facts, and to direct your attention to a state of things for which I think there should be seen sended. It was insert and for which the public collectivities, and selves, in a great measure, to blame.

The strike is ended. It was insergurated by Debs, as he said, on account of a deep-seated hatred to Pullman and his intorest. To show you the abplet infamy of this man's course, he, notwithstanding life, and the self of the control of the public of a proclamation of the period of the control of the public of the publ standing army of 100,000 or more is needed to prevent a furious, law-detying, brutal class from taking the bit between their own teeth and running things to suit themselves. The unnaturalised foreigner must be taken care of in a way that only the Federal troops understand. If I only the Federal troops understand. If I had my way, there never would be another strike in this country, for I would see to it that the nationalities with unspeakable mames and unspeakable habit and practices were driven to the sea, and ordered to awim back to the countries from whence they came, and if they attempted to return, receive them at the point of the bayonet! Why should there be any dilly-dallying shout this and ordered to awim back to the countries from whence they came, and if they attempted to return, receive them at the point of the bayonet! Why should there be any dilly-dallying about this condition of affairs? It resolves itself into one of two very plain propositions, vis.: Shall the country be saved from their grasp, or, knowing what is going on, shall we quietly and calmly sit by and witness its destruction? If there is any other aspect of the case I should like some learned pundit on the comity of nations to tell me what it is.

I have argued before, and I argue now, that no employment should be given an unnaturalized foreigner in this country, to the exclusion of the sons and daughers of those born on the soil, or of themselves, or those of adopted citisens. There are Americans walking around the streets on their uppers, while unnaturalized foreigners are given the best in the house. It is a sin and a shame that this should be, but it is a living factor, nevertheless. There is a great deal of fus and fustion indulged in by political sharpers, when they cry out in their agony: "The Chinese and the Japs must go," but we say let the unnaturalized horde that is infesting and ruining the country by their atrikes and boycotts, go, and stand not upon the order of their going, but we say let the unnaturalized horde that is infesting and ruining the country by their atrikes and boycotts, go, and stand not upon the order of their going, but go at once. Let everything not American by hight or adoption go, and the quicker they go the better it will be for all interested. There is no romance of a sentiment in this that I support and advocate, but it is the stern, cold determined conclusion that should permeat the breast of every true and honest American citizen, the highest type of civilisation that any human being can be endowed with. It is it not enough that millions of dollars of loss has been enamised on the country hy the action of a foreign reable that never can and hower will assemilate with us in any many the without any hope of permanent resist unteas they are all deported. Charity begins at home, and it is not home to be eternally supporting a gang of foreign, unnaturalized insane, idiots, drunkards, murderers, thieves, paralytics and down and along the whole gamut of disgusting diseases and crimes. There is no word-painting about this; it is founded on facist, and therefore may be stated as a fact.

Aside from the "strike" aspect of foreign immigration, there is another in which to view it. We prate a great deal about a tariff for protection, as well as for esvenue, but what kind of protection is that protection that does not protect! Labor, American labor, should be protected as well as west and dry goods, and the idea is all bosh to pretect manufactures and not protect the force that produces the manuricotures. Shop indiscriminate immigration and then labor will not be district, but will be protected, with theirs and become strong and powerful. Let labor be protected first, and them if there is enough protection left in the bag to go around the world, let the rest of the world look at what is left and return it to our own shores for our own people. God helps those who help themselves; let us fielp our own at all times and on all occasions. There is no reason why this country should keep open souphouse dor the tramps of the world. The first law of nature is self-preservation, therefore let us ones down to a realizadion of plain facts and try to preserve ourselves; and so far as employment is concerned, let none but Americans apply;
and so far as nationality goes, let but one dag be recognized in the country, and that the American flag. M. D. BORUCK.

Truly Shattuck, the daughter of the woman in State's prison for murder at San Francisco of an admirer of Truly's named Harry Poole, arrived in this city a few days Harry Poole, arrived in this city a few days ago and is registered at the Hoffman House. She is engaged as one of the actresses at a beer hall, and expects to remain in this city some three or four weeks. The managem of the place are advertising her as a spoial attraction, and she seems to be using the notoriety which the San Francisco press has given her to good financial purpose. It has been stated in San Francisco that Adiss Shattuck is travelling here as Mrs. Harry DeLasso, and that she is married to a man of that name, who was one of her admirers in San Francisco. Miss Shattuck, however, positively denies the story, and says that she is not married to enybody. She is is registered at the Hoffman House under her own name.

Watte, the oldest men in the service, sail-NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—George W. Watte, the oldest men in the service, saling from this port as a marine engineer, died at this port last night. During the war he was chief engineer of the warship Monticello. He supervised the cutting of the chains across the Mississipe River to admit vessels into New Orleans. After the battle, Gen. Butler ordered Commander Brail's to take his vessel down the river for a transport for troops. Watte told the commander of the vessel that he could not go, as it was disabled. Butler ordered the chief engineer and commander hanged at the yard-arm. Before the order was carried out, however, he relented and gave Waite time to make the necessary repairs. M. J. Caffrey, now Senator, was then Waite's assistant.

Waite was born in Scotland, and claimed to have run the fastest train that ever traveled between Scotland and England, Queen Victoria being a passenger at the time.

After the fight Rust walked to the home of Stephen Ripley, superintendent of the mill, and, while telling the story, fell over from the loss of blood. Medical assistance was summoned, and while the surgeons were at work Ripley started in pursuit of the assailant, whom he captured in the outskirts of the city. He carried a nard from the Amalgamated Union of fron and Steel-workers. One of his partners, Henry Cartin, was also arrested. Dewitt's victim is in a critical condition.

HELENA (Mont..) Aug. 13.—About 406 feet of the roof of the Mullin tunnel on the Northern Pacific caved in last night. Just before the accident thirty men left the tunnel to let a freight pass through, intending to return after it had passed. Just as the freight was entering, the cave-in occurred. Trains will be sent via Butte until the break is repaired, which will be several weeks.

THE STORRS FRANCHISE.

The question of the granting of the franchise for the construction of an electric railway to H. E. Storrs then came up. Clerk Luckenbach reported that the full amount of $3640 on the franchise had been deposited in the form of certified checks, and also the additional amount required on the paving. The question was asked as to whether the only objection the Mayor had to the granting of the franchise was the luck of the deposit originally. Mayor Rowan came in and said that he had no further objections, as the money had been secured, and the ordinance granting the franchise was then passed. Mr. Storrs appeared and asked that the bond required be fixed in amount, and the sum agreed upon was $10,000.

President Teed asked whether or not the names of the parties back of the franchise could not be divulged at this time.

In reply, Mr. Storrs said that he had not the privilege of so doing.

Councilman Nickell, the Cicero of the Council, arose and made a speech for "fair play." He had voted for the granting of the franchise, but he would say that he would never repeat the action again, unless he knew who was to receive the benefit. "The city is entitled to know." he exclaimed, "who stands back of this thing."

ncilman Rhodes was not of the same n, and he spoke in defense of Mr., and the subject was dropped. THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

The Mayor sent in the following message slative to the license tax, which was read

"As your honorable body has under consideration amendments to the license ordinance recently returned by me, I take this opportunity to suggest such amendments as seem to me proper. In the first place, I concur in the recommendation of your Committee on Finance to repeal the sections providing a license for mercantile, produce commission merchants and breweries, reducing the license for street car advertising, etc. ticket brokers and express wagons, making auctioners' licenses payable quarterly in advance, and also providing a license for tamale wagons, etc.

"I would suggest also to meet the objections of the Spiritualists, that you amend section 14 of the ordinance by inserting at the end thereof the words. Provided that this section shall not be construed to require a license from any regularly ordained spiritualistic minister in pursuit of his religious calling.

"Also that section 15 be amended so as to provide a separate license for bill posting, advertising. Also that you favorably consider the question of making all laundries liable for a license of 35 per month.

"Also that you amend section 31 in regard to selling fruit, so that it shall read, for every fruit peddiar, so as to avoid any claim for misunderstanding.

"Also that the reasons for reducing the leense on express wagons should apply with equal force to milk wagons.

"Also that as you have done away with he license for livery stables, I can eee to reason for retaining the license on vagon and feed stables.

"I would suggest that the provision for leense for street musicians should apply with equal force to bands parading upon the streets, and that the latter should not be required to pay a license."

SPECIAL MATTERS.

The Water Overseer was ordered to change the water in the lake in Hollenbeck Park to relieve the stench arising therefrom.

The Street Superintendent petitioned to be allowed to employ five extra men to do repair work on the paved streets. It was ordered that the suparintendent bring in a requisition for the man desired at the afternoon session.

Counciliman Munson wanted to know whether the water company could be compelled to lay pipes of sufficient size on certain streets now being graded. He said that on New Fourth street the company was now engaged in relaying the old two-inch pipe in defiance of the direct order of the Council that a larger pipe be put in Other members of the Council also had something to say on the question, as there were other streets where the same thing was being repeated. Mr. Munson said that the result of this practice was that the result of this practice was that the supply of water was diminished in certain localities and that there was actual want in many cases. Deputy City Attorney Dunn was called in to give an opinion as to what legal action could be taken in the premises, but he was not ready to give an opinion on such short notice, and it was thereupon resolved that the Council meet on Wednesday morning to further continue hearing on the matter, and listen to the law on the subject.

The noon recess was here taken.

Afternoon Session.

The subject of the opening of Thirty-second street was brought up at 2 o'clock, and, after some discussion, a motion was made that all proceedings be abandoned in the matter. A substitute motion that action be postponed for one week prevailed, however.

Councilman Smith moved that the name of Lazard street be changed to Ducommun street. Referred to the Board of Public Works.

"In the matter of the petition of H. R. Hanna, secretary of the Spring-street Improvement Association, I find that an ordinance regulating the matters complained of will, of necessity, be very complicated, and I am of the opinion that if the Council desires to regulate the width of tires to be used on wagons and the trucking to be done on Spring or other streets, the matter should be referred to a committee to prepare definite instructions before the ordinance is drawn." Referred to Board of Public Works. "In the matter of the petition of E. P. Carniele, I find that Mr. Stranger personally was the bidder for the franchise referred to, and would advise that the City Clerk notify him at once to fulfill the conditions imposed by the advertisement for bids." Adopted.

county, and ordered a new trial in the case of the People (respondent) vs. William H. Moore (appellant) for the reasons set forth in an elaborate opinion received yesterday by Deputy Clerk Session for filing in this city.

Appellant was convicted of a crime against nature, and was sentenced to suffer the very severe penalty of imprisonment in the State prison for the term of fortyone years. He appealed from the judgment.

Young Mr. Bright of Chicago, who was nabbed by Detective Bowler at Redondo a few weeks ago for a board bill which he had forgotten to pay at the Hotel Metropole at Catalina, and who is now at the County Jail awaiting trial for burglarising the room of Mrs. J. Noble at the same botel, is in a peek of trouble.

He has protested all along that he is innocent, he tells stories of magnificent property which is all his own, away back in old Virginia. He says that he had been the guest of a friend at the Metropole and that it would be regarded as a gross breach of etiquette from the standpoint of gentlemen in the effect Bast for him to have even offered to pay this bill. And as Mr. Bright, wears white duck trousers with the very nicest creases in them, and has a necktie for every day in the year, and one of those iong willie-boy coats, besides lots of other things which the heart of the young man of fashion craves, there are those who, have been firmly convinced all along that Mr. Bright is a very nice young gentleman indeed, with such polished manners, and such a distinguished bearing, and have absolutely refused to believe him guilty of such a vulgar thing as burglary.

Now comes a story from Capt. Lees of the San Francisco detective force begging the authorities here to hold Bright at all hazards, as they want bim up there very much indeed. Strange to say, the San Francisco detectives also want Mr. Bright because, they say, he is a burglar.

Detective Bowler has been quietly investigating Bright's past record ever since he was streeted, and there is no doubt but that he (Bright) is a young swindler with a long criminal record behind him. He has made a specialty of stylish hotels and stylish people, and has managed to make this living out of one and the other for some time past.

Capt. Lees accuses Bright of getting at the Hotel del Monte at Monterey during the early part of the summer. He also says that there are two valuable gold watches that have been stolen from Ban Francisco gentlemen by a young man hopersemble Miner Bedbury's Experience on the Mariposa Grant.

C. O. Bedbury, a miner, has just returned to this city from Mariposa county, where he has been on a prospecting tour. Bedbury says that he was led to make the trip by seeing a notice in a San Francisco paper to the effect that a grant containing 37,000 acres of mineral land had been throws open for settlement. When he reached the place, however, he states that he found that the report was not true, but this a company was in possession of the land, and would only allow prospecting on condition that if any valuable ledges were discovered that they would have the privilege of taking possession of such finds and hiring the finders at wages of 35 per day. If they did not wish to work the ledges themselves the miners would be obliged to give them 25 per cent. of the returns as their share in the profits, and all shafts should be put down at least fitty feet. Bedbury says that he became disguisted, although he found several paying ledges, for he could make nothing by working under such a close-fisted plan. He took some samples of rock to San Francisco and there made a statement of the condition of affairs as he found them. The company, he said, charged twice as much for crushing ore as did other mills in the vicinity, and were correspondingly miserly in other ways. While on his way home Bedbury says that he met many out the benefit of other deluded individuals he desired to relate his experience.

The Paper Better Than Ever.

A department particularly adapted to the peculiar character of our So nia agricultural and horticultural interests, carefully prepared by a practical and educated farmer, will, in the future, be a valuable feature of the Satuanday Thors. ated farmer, will, in the future, be a valuable feature of the Saruaday WEEKLY MIRBOR, and will also appear in the daily issue each Saturday. A So california News Page is also published weekly. These features, with the variety, relia bility and general excellence of the other departments, render this paper infinitely-rior as a general family newspaper to any weekly publication in the Southwest.

FIELD OF POLITICS.

Enthusiastic Meeting of the Republican Club.

Speeches by Hon. A. B. Campbell of Kansas, and Other Distintinguished Visitors.

The Single-taxers Addressed by Mr. Gregg, the Populist Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor— Political Pointers.

The Republican Club of this city held an informal reception at its rooms, on West Second street, last night, which was pronounced success in every way.
Although the night for the regular neeting of the club, President Carter announced, that the rules would be sus-meeting of the club, President Carter announced, that the rules would be suppended, and the routine business passed on that occasion, in order that a few of the most prominent of the guests might address the large crowd present.

He then briefly introduced Hon. L. E. Finch of Kansas, who created considerable amusement by his reference to a former resident of his town, whom he found, although not even a voter in this State at the time of his appointment, drawing a salary of $150 per month as an assistant to the District Atforney, and whom he understood loved the dear people so much that he shaved their warrants, at a discount, at every opportunity. He predicted confidently that he was going back to redeem Kansas, and replace her in the column of Republicanism, and called upon Californians to see to it that her Populist Congressman was ousted for a Republican.

Lee Fairchild followed, with a lengthy

Congressman was oussed for a Republican.

Lee Fairchild followed, with a lengthy denunciation of the Populist fallacles, as laid down by T. V. Cator on Saturday night last, and he, in turn, gave way to Gen. Pierce, who merely introduced Gen. A. B. Campbell of Kansas, the orator of the avening.

for the purpose of making speeches themselves.

At the close of Gen. Campbell's eloquent address, Hop. Spencer G. Millard paid a brief tribute to the distinguished visitor from Kansas, and predicted that on November 6 next his friends here would be able to telegraph to him to the effect that the Republicans had carried this glorious State by from fifteen thousand to twenty thousand majority.

The meeting: then adjourned to the buffst of the club, where light refreshments were discussed.

MR. GREGG'S TALK.

The Populist Nominee Before the Single-taxers.

A. J. Gregg, the candidate of the Populists for Lieutenant-Governor, addressed the single-tax meeting at Unity Church last evening. Mr. Gregg, atthough a People's party man, is an ardant single-taxer. In his address he held that all men have equal rights to the bounties of nature and that each man has an exclusive right to the products of his labor. Land is a bounty of nature and from tall wealth through labor, is produced. Therefore labor should have unbought access to it. There is no equity in private property in tand. "A grant of land carries with it all of its products except a bare thrings. The single tax on land values is certain because land values are most easily appraised; wise, because by discouraging the withdrawal of land from use and encouraging its improvement, it would expand opportunities for labor, sugment wealth, and increase the awards of industry and thrift; equal, because every one would pay taxes in proportion to the value of the land, the common property of all, which he appropriated to his use; and just, because it would not fall upon labor, enterprise and thrift; but upon the value of special privilege. Single-taxers.

Mr. Gregg's Measure. A correspondent familiar with Mr. Gregg's record, sends the following to

The Times:

"A. J. Gregg of Oakland is interesting for two recent events in his life. First, he is the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor on the ticket of that most aboundable of all aboundations, the Populist party. Next, he could not agree with the Oakland police upon the interpretation of a city ordinance, forbidding the obstruction of a public street. It was the usual result—the orator was "run in," for, he result—the orator was "run in," for, he Oakland police upon the interpretation of a city ordinance, forbidding the obstruction of a public street. It was the usual result—the orator was "run in," for, be it known, that on his native heath, he is a curb-stone orator, whose favorite thems is the injustice of ownership of any kind of property, unless it is owned by the man, who never owns anything.

"At the meeting of the Single-tax Club at Unity Church last avening, a 'small, but select,' audience greeted the future martyr Populist. As he rose to acknowledge the introduction to the audience, by the president of the club, he seemed to be a man fully six feet in height, silm rather than stout, with neatly-trimmed gray whiskers, and, except for a patch of gray over the ears, darkish-brown hair. His face is long and narrow, with somewhat thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with thin, lanteru laws; a nose, neither aquilline nor Roman, yet long and with a frace of both, forehead receding, narrow, and medium in height. About the middle upper part of the forehead is a dark spot the size of a two-bit piece, that looks as if it might have been produced by the whack of a broomstick, or, if the gentleman chops his own kindling wood, instead of letting his wife do it, like others of his ilk, a stick may have flown up and left its mark upon him. The man is a living example of what brass and cheek will do in pushing very medicere ability into public grominence."

SMASHED THE EDITOR.

The Assault on Paul H. Blades of San Diego.

The San Diegan-Sun gives the following account of the assault on its editor, Paul H. Blades, briefly reported in the Associated Press dispatches a few days ago: "Lasi night, about 7:30 o'clock, as Paul H. Blades, editor of the San Diegan-Sun, started to go home from his office, he was assaulted by a son of Jeseph Surr, member of the Board of Education. As Mr. Blades turned up Fourth street, in front of the barber shop in the Sun building, a young man arose from some sort of a seat he had been occupying in front of the barber shop, stepped alongside of Mr. Blades, and remarked in a quiet manner that aroused no suspicion of his belligerent intentions: "I have been waiting to see you, Mr. Blades. replying through the same medium, and which has always sustained the Surr methods.

"The report that Mr. Surr jerked Mr. Biades up from the ground by the collas is absolutely untrue. Mr. Biades was not knocked to the ground, but as he turned when Mr. Surr struck first he was blinded by the stinging blow and fell upon his right knee, but arose at once, without any assistance from young Surr.

"Mr. Blades did not call for help. Surr did say: 'Come to the police station,' and caught Blades by the coat and began puling, but Blades shook the assailant of just as T. M. Shaw and several others came up. Blades is taller than young Surr, but Surr is athletic and vigorous, which the former is not, and even it aprepared contest Mr. Blades would undoubtedly have had the worst of it, as he has not the physical strength to make a very vigorous fight. Surr hit hard, and drew blood, and that is all there is about it, and Blades makes no attempt to conceal the fact that young Surr git away with him badly.

"It has been suggested that young Surr with make, and Young Surr would probably enjor nothing hetter than paying 310 for the privilege of sinnshing an editor. The assault is one of those incidents which have bean common among a certain class ever since agressive journalism began, and which are likely to continue. And that's all there is about it.

"It develops this morning that for two nights young Surr had been waiting around the San Diegan-Sun office to get a chance at Mr. Blades. He would not come into the office and state his case and talk, but hung around outside after-dark.

On the plaza last night he folded his arms and said he was Vincent Surr, son of Joseph Surr; member of the Board of Education; that the San Diegan-Sun had insulted his father, and as he had no noney to carry on a libel suit he had no other recourse than to assault the editor,
"Joseph Surr is here, and now informed of what he would have known before, if he had known what a man of his pretension to information should have known, that to information should have known, that there was not a libslous word concerning him published in the San Diegan-Sun." Mr. Blades, in the same issue, reviews the master in a column article, concluding as follows:

IN SOCIAL SPHERES.

An informal but pleasant card party An informal but pleasant card party was given last evening by Mrs. M. G. Orr, at her residence on West Adams street, in honer of Mrs. L. H. Fuller (nee Ballard of Tustin) of Chicago. The pretty rooms were charmingly decorated with nasturtiums and white roses. Several musical numbers, both vocal and instrumental, were rendered during the evening. Dainty refreshments were served. Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Weish. The information which led to the seizure the goods came from J. C. C. Price, the company, who filled the packages and gave them to him for delivery.

Price, it appears, expostulated with the firm when asked to dieliver the goods to the Littleboy drug store, because he saw them filling a two-stamped half-barret with rectified brandy, and feeling certain of ultimate discovery, to protect himself, gave the information which resulted in the seizure of the goods. He was arrested several days ago, it is claimed, maliciously with the intention of making him pay a number of uncollected accounts for which they had accepted his note not yet due.

number of uncollected accounts for which they had accepted his note not yet due.

At Littleboy's drug store it was stated that the goods in question were bought last June, and as they appeared to equal the sample, they were placed in the cellar until needed. When the deputy collector called and made an examination he found the double stamped package to have a whisky stamp, and the gauging of the other not to equal the stamp. Mr. Reeves, the manager, at once notified the Hermitage Vintage Company to remove the goods, because the packages and stamps were pronounced to be incorrect by the revenue inspector, and also to return the money pald for them.

List Saturday the goods were removed by the government, and yesterday the liquor company refunded the druggists the entire amount of their purchase. Beyond that they knew nothing, as they did not understand the marking of packages and stamps, and had bought the goods supposing everything was correct.

Last Friday night internal Revenue Deputy Collector Noah stated that he had inspected the goods, and found the packages equ quim puodscanco nou pip stures pur contents. He told the druggist to hold the goods subject to his order, and at once telegraphed the United States Internal Revenue Collector at San Francisco for instructions. On Saturday he was wired to confiscate the goods and report the violation of the revenue law to United States District Attorney Denis.

The deputy made his report to the United States District Attorney yesterday. What action has been taken in the matter could not be learned up to a late hour last night, although it was rumored that warrants had been issued for three members of the company on the charge of violating the internal revenue laws, and that their arrests would soon follow.

LAID TO REST.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE DE-TECTIVE BENSON.

The Police Force Attends in a Body The Remains Followed to the Grave by a Large Concourse

Every member of the police department, pesides hosts of friends and private citiens, united in paying the last sad tribute of respect to the memory of Detective A.

O. Benson at the funeral yesterday afternoon. The services, conducted by Rev. Thomas Hendry of the Park Congregational Church, were held at the undertaking es-Church, were neid at the understang es-tablishment of Orr & Patterson. There were many pathetic scenes before the ceremonies were finally concluded. When the wife and mother of the deceased were led gently into the darkened room where the casket was lying, their convulsive sob standing near, whose daily life brings them into contact with sin and sorrow and suffering in every form, were affected by them into contact with sin and sorrow and suffering in every form, were affected by the scene, and there was not a dry eye in the room.

A profusion of wreaths, bouquets, crosses and other floral emblems about the casket, testified to the high esteem in which the deceased officer was held.

About 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the members of the police force under Capt. Roberts and Sergeants Jeffries and Morton, mustered at police headquarters in full uniform and marched down Spring street to the undertaker's, where they stood, drawn up in single file, during the progress of the services.

After the singing of a hymn by a quarter from the choir of the First sighthodist. Church, Rev. Mr. Hendry read pottlons from the burial service, and then offered a simple prayer in which he invoked the divine pity on the bereaved family.

"Our friend who has just passed away," said the minister at the conclusion of his remarks, "was a frue man. There was one word which, I believe, was the motto of his life. It was the word duty. He loved to discharge that which came to him as his duty. Those who knew him best oved him best. His love and tender care for his little crippled son tells more eloquently than words the true mobleness of his character. He was honored, respected, beloved; let us bear him with tears to his last resting place."

A few minutes fater the casket was placed in the hearse standing at the dox and wife and mother again gave way to a paroxyim of grief as they were led to the carriage which awaited them.

The Tuneral procession passed along Spring street to First, and down First to Evergreen Cemetery, where the interment took place. The members of the police force each carried a bouquet of flowers which they cast into the open grave as a last sad tribute to their departed comrade.

Police Commissioners George R. Arnold, W. F. Bosbyshell, Thomas J. Weldon and A. J. Bradish, and Detectives J. J. Haynley and the olose of the ceremonies:

"The following resolutions were drawn up at the close of the ceremonies:

Benson's Heavy Burden.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(To the Editor of The Times:) As a near neighbor to the family of the late Mr. Benson, I would like to explain how it happens that a man so efficient in his calling, so devoted to his family and so universally respected by his friends and acquaintances, should leave those dependent on him with no resources whatever. It is easily understood by those who know the circumstances. The oldest of the five children, a boy 12 years old, is spoken of as a cripple. The child has neverwalked. Although seemingly strong and healthy in other respects, and full grown for his age, until within a couple of years he has had absolutely no control of his legs. Until recently he never so much as purhed his helpless feet against the floor, as he sat in, his chair or wagon. Of course, the parents have consulted many physicians, and tried everything that gave a reasonable hope of relief or cure. As may readily be believed, this consumed everything beyond the actual needs of the family, and $70 and less per month is not a great sum with which to pay rent, provide for a family of seven Benson's Heavy Burden.

The Spring of Eternal Youth.

integrity, possessed of high moral and physical courage, gifted with phenominally accurate powers of observation, and a memory which only forgot 'fastigue' and extra hours' whom duty called; an ideal wearer of the star of police authority, whose sets were ever free from taint of malice or vindictiveness, who brought crimibals to justice often with sorrow and sympathy for them, but realizing that crime must be punished that right may prevail. With one accord we speak these words of commendation: 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'

"Resolved, that we, the members of the Los Angeles Police Department, have lost a genial friend, and a willing and capable helper, whose place in our memories and in our work cannot be filled, and have lost from our ranks a man whose simple, unostentatious He, free from vices, filled with kindness for his companions in work, and with the noblest devotion to mother, wife and children has earned the admiration of all who knew him.

"Resolved, that to the members of the family of the teccessed, to the falthful old mother, the guide of his youth, and his companion and adviser shrough his forty years, and who was with him in his distant to the members of the family of the teccessed, to the falthful old mother, the guide of his youth, and his companion and adviser shrough his forty years, and who was with him in his distant to the members of the family of the teccessed, to the falthful old mother, the guide of his youth, and his companion and adviser shrough his forty years, and who was with him in his distant to the members of the family of the devoted wife, the mother of his five children, and to the faithful old mother, the guide of his youth, and his companion and adviser shrough his forty years, and who was with him in bis distant their great need will raise up for them many generous friends, and that the All-mightly God, infinite in power and love, may bless and protect them.

"THE LOS ANGELIES POLICE DEP"T.

"THE LOS ANGELIES POLICE DEP"T. such a misfortune.

Some three years ago, or thereabouts, a surgical operation seemed to be a decided benefit, and up to the present time the improvement, though very slow, indeed, has been perceptible. Much of Mr. Benson's time, not given to his business, has been devoted to his son, carrying him about and taking strest-car rides with him, and trying in every way in his power to compensate for the loss entailed by the affiction. As I have intimated, the last two or three years have seen a slight improvement. It has been one of the familiar and pathetic sights of the neighborhood to see the father supporting the boy by the shoulders and encouraging him to step and stand on his feet. For some time, the poor child has been too large and heavy for the mother to carry or handle. It is hoped that sufficient interest and sympathy may be felt among the friends, neighbors and business associates of Mr. Benson, to prompt some provision whereby the already overburdened mother may not be compelled to suddenly face the question of a living for her helpless children. The suddenness of her sad bereavement has given no time for thought and plans for the future.

(Civil Service Gazette:) By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may ave us many heavy doctors bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack-wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortised with opure blood and a properly nourished frame.

We all settled ourselves to listen, for Brown is an excellent reconteur.

"Two years ago I was working in the dry-goods business ir New York, for a man named White. The two colors harmonized pretty well. I believe, and my employer and I certainly got along very smoothly. On the ist of June White and his family left their town-house and went to Mantabking, in New Jersey, to spend the summer. A couple of servants were to look after the things in the city, but as there were a number of articles of considerable value in the house. White asked me if I would sleep there. To this I assented, and, taking a small stock of clothes and a big six-shooter, I established myself at No. — West Twentieth street. Nothing eventful had happened, and I had been there about two weeks when my employer came in from New Jersey one morning and announced that he would spend the night in the city, in order to be on hand early the next morning for some business engagement. We went that evening to the theater together and retired about 11:30 to our bedrooms on the second foor. About 2 o'clock I was sleeping the sleep of the just, and, it may be, making the air vibrate with a melodious snore, for I have been accused of such things, when I was awakened by some one tugging at my shoulder, and there by my bedside stood White in his pajamas.

"For heaven's sake, get your revolver and get up," he gasped, "there's a burglar downstairs.' I leaped out of bed, grasped my six-shooter, and we stood there a moment, two white figures—with palpitating hearts bemeath, if the truth were 'tedid.' White had armed himself with some 'so't' of bludgeon. We advanced cautiously to the head of the stairs and listened. Sure enough, some one was moving around in the kitchen in a somewhat reckless manner, as it seemed to me. Then footsleps approached the stairs and listened. H. Knight of this city:

"Your esteemed favor of the 9th ult. came to hand, and in reply to your interrogations as to the pecan tree will say, after investigation, that it is one of the handgomest shade trees in the South. There are two in this county, one of them 4½ feet in diameter, with a limb extending out 75 feet, shading altogether half an acre, and has produced as much as twenty-one barrels of fruit in one season, the size of an English wainut with very thin shell; the other tree is 4 feet in diameter and shades nearly half an acre, and has produced seventeen barrels. They commence bearing after seven to ten years growth, and produce one to five barrels yearly. The average size in diameter is from 18 to 24 inches. It is grown here artificially, both for its shade and fruit. It is found as high as Tennessee. The fruit on the smaller trees are from 1 inch to 2 inches long, and sell wholesale at 10 cents per pound, the largest size at 15 cents per pound, and are extensively grown in Texas, being planted in groves, and the owners of the same are considered very rich men."

STOLE A RING.

A Young Gambler Taken in for Petty Larceny.

Officer Singleton arrested a young man of stylish attire yesterday, for whom a warrant has been waiting two or three weeks. The man's name is lke Spier, and he is a tin-horn gambler by profes-sion. nie Farmer, residing at room 3, No.

Minnie Parmer, residing at room 3, No. 123 South Main street, swore to a compaint against Spier for petty larceny some little time ago. She claims that Spier and another man called at her room one wening and that Spier put one of her sings on his finger during the progress of the social visit. When the young menurose to go their hostess demanded her ring, but Spier airly refused to let her away it. Subsequently, she alleges, he took his ring, which she valued at 35, and awaned it at Cohen's pawnshop, where he afterwards found her property. Spier has not been about his usual nunts lately, and has been very scarce in he localities where the officers of the law is to be found. He told Officer Singleton, lowwer, that he didn't steal the ring, but hat a friend of his gave it to him to pawn.

Dr. J. A. Arbeely, who is known qu'te widely as the Syrian traveler and lecturer, died at Glendora Sunday evening, and will be buried today at 3:30 o'clock. The history of the deceased's life reads almost like a romance, and illustrates what may be attained by the exercise of pluck and energy. one strained by the exercise or pluck and energy. The learned Syrian has traveled over nearly the whole globe, and spent the closing days of his life with his son in Southern California.

Dr. Joseph A. Arbeely was born in the village of Arbel, six miles from Damascus, Syria. He was about 75 years old. At the time of his birth nothing like a regular educational system was known in that country. In those days the people took but little interest in such matters. In his early youth young Arbeely chanced to overhear the missionaries talk about America, and the learning to be obtained there, and so a spirit of curiosity was awakened within him. He began from that time to inquire from Europeans who chanced to be in the city of Damascus as to what were the best methods for him to pursue to gain knowledge and learning. From one person to another he contihued his researches for a number of months, until he came in contact with Dr. Nassef Machaka, who directed him with a letter of introduction to the noted Greek priest, Rev. Dr. Joseph, and so, after learning that Dr. Joseph would assist him, the next question was as to how he could obtain money to prosecute his desires.

As he was a poor boy, Dr. Joseph told him that he would speak to the Greek Priest, Rev. Dr. Joseph was an enlightened man, about him. The Greek said he would like to see the young man who was so anxious to learn. When the boy was ushered into his presence the Greek asked him, "Are youth answered "Tes, for the purpose of markightening my countrymen in future years." The patriarch said, "You look bright and intelligent; you may yet make a mark in Syria which will be remembered. Go ahead and I will do everything in my power to ald you in securing your education. Find the tutor you desire to study under, and began his studies diligently, but secretly from his father and mother, who were superstitious, and felt that it would be wrong to allow their offspring to take up a new branch of learning which might interfere with his religious teachings. The several of quartermasters are busy getting things in shape to go down with the advance guard shape to go down with the advance guard, the regimental quartermaster, Sergt. Leha, hausen, has all he wants to do, looking after the paraphernalia and camp furniture of the staff and attached "non-coms," besides overseeing the work of the company quartermasters. The men are all eager to be off, and it is believed that there will be an unusually large percentage in attendance, which is likely to be the case, particularly as the regiment has not been in camp since two years ago, when the Seventh was alone at Ventura. This year the two regiments of the brigade, the Sawenth and Ninth, will camp side by side, and Santa Monica being so much more convenient for all the local companies, it is reasonable to expect a large turnout. more convenient for all the local companies, it is reasonable to expect a large turnout. The Signal Corps being a brigade organization and not attached to any regiment, will go into camp by itself at Catalina, and will leave early Sunday morning. All the advance details leave on Friday, so as to have ample time to get the tents up, kitchens built and the camp generally in readiness for occupancy.

Co. A, under command of Capt. Steere, will probably parade with forty men, or perhaps forty-five. Co. C, the new company just formed and commanded by Capt. Symms, has seventy-seven men so far on its roll, and is likely to take fifty-five men to camp. This company is now drilling three nights a week, and will make a good showing, although three-fourths of the men are raw recruits.

Capt. Reynolds, of Co. F, is at Catalina, assisting the officers in command of the Whittler cadets who are encamped there, so it is not known just what his plans are, but Lieut. Weller, who is in temporary command, expects to have forty men present during the whole time of the encampment.

It is not known just how long the militia will remain the support of the work of the encampment.

men present during the whole time of the encampment.

It is not known just how long the militia will remain in camp, but that will depend on how long the appropriation helds out. The minimum time allowed is eight days, however, and it is expected that the regiment will remain at the beach until Wednesday of next week.

The officers and men will undoubtedly receive much valuable instruction at the hands of the regular army officers, and the men will all be on their mettle to make as good a showing as possible by comparison with the regulars.

Our Light Shines.

Last week the representative of the leading lamp manufacturer of the United States was in this city. He had with him 325 sample lamps on which he was taking orders for the holiday trade. Saturday he finished his busi-ness with the dealers of this city, and ness with the dealers of this city, and instead of re-packing these lamps and shipping them to Denver to show the dealers there, he had another lot sent from the factory to Denver, and we purchased his sample line at a discount of 50 per cent. from the regular wholesale price. This makes the lamps cost us, laid down here in Los Angeles, about one-half the manufacturer's price on the Eastern coast. lamps cost us, laid down here in Los Angeles, about one-half the manufacturer's price on the Eastern coast. These lamps we shall place on sale in our basement this morning at 9 o'clock. There are no two lamps alike in the assortment; and no such lamp chance has ever been offered to the public of this city. The first lot of which we shall speak will be an assortment of Banquet Lamps, 94 different styles, made with all the embellishments of the most recent light arts now in vogue. The standards are lovely specimens of brass working. There are also some beautiful Mexican Onyx, cast and antique-finish stands; some being mounted in brass and some in silver. A beautiful new urn design is also shown in this collection. The usual price of these goods at retail would be from $3.50 to $20. We mark the prices ranging from $2 to $13; no two lamps the same price.

Lamps.

At $1.25 to $4.50. About 85 different styles of the most elegant base lamps that ever shed their light on this Coast. These are made in different designs of metal bases with bisque and glazed finish bases, beautifully decorated, with dome shades to match. The usual price for such lamps as these would be $2 to $6.

At $3.95. We show an elegant Venetian banquet lamp. The regular retail price of which in an ordinary way would be $10. Our assortment and range of prices of Venetian lamps is far and away ahead of anything that has ever been seen in this town, and the prices are flickering low.

Men's Wearables.

We are fighting a hard fight to close out all of our odds and ends of summer goods for men, before our New York buyer commences his shipments of fall stock. Here are four prices that every man who wears anything that other men wear, should tattoo on his mind.
